Ten Days in the Hills. It is the morning after the Academy Awards. Max, an award-winning writer and his lover, Elena, are hosts to a house full of guests including their daughter, a movie star, a healer and an agent. Over the course of the next ten life-changing days, they share stories of Hollywood, watch movies and become entangled by the pool.

Ten Days in the Hills by Jane Smiley - Goodreads

A glorious new novel from the Pulitzer Prize winner: a big, smart, bawdy tale of love and war, sex and politics, friendship and betrayal—and the allure of the movies. With Giovanni Boccaccio's Decameron as her model, Jane Smiley takes us through ten transformative, unforgettable days in the Hollywood hills.

When social historians look back at 2003 to discover America's psychological state as 9/11 gave way to the Iraq War, they'll learn more from Jane Smiley's decadent fantasia Ten Days In The Hills than from the period's cable news or talk radio. Not that Smiley documents reality. Instead, she uses a novelist's imagination to extract telling details from the crazy-quilt of heightened emotion and ...

takes place over a 10-day period and certainly incorporates Boccaccio's lusty spirit and storytelling enthusiasm. In the case of TEN DAYS IN THE HILLS, the setting is the Hollywood Hills and the year is 2003, the day after the Academy Awards and the start of the current Iraq war. Joining Max and Elena at their Hollywood villa are, among others, Jane Smiley's 'Ten Days in the Hills'. There's Max's ex-wife, Zoey, a sexpot movie star who's traveling with her boyfriend, Paul, a yogi who might be enlightened or might just be a fraud. There's Max's uptight vegan daughter and Elena's goofball son, Max's agent, his ex-mother-in-law, a childhood friend and a neighbor from down the street.

Jane Smiley's 'Ten Days in the Hills' : NPR

I found 'Ten Days in the Hills' to have the typical intimacy of Smiley's works. The conversations among 10 people in a magnificent and isolated Hollywood house ramble around diets, ex's, psychobabble and movies, stop, but only temporarily, when news of the war intrudes.
