A Grief Observed is a collection of C. S. Lewis's reflections on the experience of bereavement following the death of his wife, Joy Davidman, in 1960. The book was first published in 1961 under the pseudonym N.W. Clerk, as Lewis wished to avoid identification as the author. Though republished in 1963, after his death, under his own name, the text still refers to his wife as "H" (her first ...

[God] said (in the Bible) that we were gods and He is going to make good His words. If we let Him for we can prevent Him, if we choose He will make the feeblest and filthiest of us into a god or goddess, a dazzling, radiant, immortal creature, pulsating all through with such energy and joy and wisdom and love as we cannot now imagine.

But for many marketing teams, achieving this high level of coordination and teamwork can be a tall task. Different parties have different priorities and KPIs, and often, one department's "urgent" is another department's "this can wait until next week." This lack of alignment causes missed deadlines, underwhelming content, and, ultimately, a missed opportunity to enter the market with a bang.
