The 19th-century English naturalist Charles Darwin argued that organisms come about by evolution, and he provided a scientific explanation, essentially correct but incomplete, of how evolution occurs and why it is that organisms have features—such as wings, eyes, and kidneys—clearly structured to serve specific functions. Natural selection was the fundamental concept in his explanation.

Power and majority ethics (morality) are contrasted with the absolute form of ethics found in Christianity, and with the common problem of situational ethics. Hot-spot ethical areas are homosexuality, globalization, genetic engineering, medical ethics etc. ...

Ethics (morality): majority, power, situational, and absolute

The will to power (German: der Wille zur Macht) is a prominent concept in the philosophy of Friedrich Nietzsche. The will to power describes what Nietzsche may have believed to be the main driving force in humans. However, the concept was never systematically defined in Nietzsche's work, leaving its interpretation open to debate.
