Etymology. The origin of the name Selangor is uncertain. A common suggestion is that the name refers to the Malay word langau, a large fly or blowfly that is found in the marshes along the Selangor River in the state's north-west. According to local lore, a warrior who escaped from Malacca after the Portuguese conquest, took a break from his journey north and rested under a tree here.

According to William Kentridge, "The Rebus sculptures [are] as hieroglyphs, placed in a line like a line of letters or words or syllables which can be rearranged to make new sentences." The project started out as a collection of drawings portraying how images are able to transform. The practice was then extended to cardboard cut-outs and then into three dimensional cardboard sculptures.
