In electronics and signal processing, a Gaussian filter is a filter whose impulse response is a Gaussian function (or an approximation to it, since a true Gaussian response is physically unrealizable). Gaussian filters have the properties of having no overshoot to a step function input while minimizing the rise and fall time. This behavior is closely connected to the fact that the Gaussian ...

1. Introduction. It has been almost 150 years since the first prototype colored traffic signal light was installed in Westminster, England in 1868 (Webster and Cobbe, 1966). Signal control systems have experienced tremendous development both in hardware and in control strategies. Currently, there are three major traffic control strategies: fixed-time, actuated and adaptive.
