Why Can't We Just All Get Along?

I touched on several possibilities for this in a previous article: Why can I not access certain web sites?.I'd certainly recommend that as a starting point. However, since that article was written, an additional reason for some web sites not being accessible has surfaced that's worth looking into in a little more detail.

Thank you to everyone for answering. We finally found the issue. In sys.databases, log_reuse_wait_desc was equal to 'replication'. Apparently this means something to the effect of SQL Server waiting for a replication task to finish before it can reuse the log space.

Why can't I shrink a transaction log file, even after backup?

Compiler checks dependencies on compiled files, not on source code. So it means the compiler doesn't file DoodleClient.class. To check if you have the compiled class, open the Navigator view (Window -> Show View -> Navigator) and look for the directory that contains the .class files (usually bin/<project> or target/classes for Maven) and check if you have there DoodleClient.class file.
