Star Trek: Discovery's recent episode "The Sound of Thunder" featured a few old school design nods to Star Trek: The Original Series. While the show hasn't shied away from invoking previous canon (or abandoning it, depending on whom you ask), these were more subtle references than say, the Enterprise showing up.

The question crops up whether Star Trek's philosophy can offer anything to replace religion. The answer must be quite obvious to anyone who has ever listened to Star Trek's opening credits: "...to boldly go where no man has gone before." Most of all the movies, and ironically all those made under Roddenberry's surveillance, show how humanity and "enlightened" aliens likewise are still ...
