Strange Rebels: 1979 and the Birth of the 21st Century. Most historians would have us believe that the twenty-first century began in 1989, with the fall of the Berlin Wall. But the world we live in today and the problems that plague it can actually be traced back a decade earlier. 1979 was the year that the postwar order evaporated,...

In his new book, "Strange Rebels," Christian Caryl maintains that 1979 was a "transformative" year when apparently different leaders were all seized by a "peculiar spirit of defiance." The result was the end of the post-World-War II order and the beginning of what we know now: an era of globalized economics and politicized religion.

The front cover of Strange Rebels tells the story: four very different leaders — Deng Xiaoping, the Ayatollah Khomeini, Pope John Paul II and, center stage, Margaret Thatcher — who each emerged on the world stage circa 1979 and who together, Christian Caryl argues, introduced the key concepts of the 21st century. There's much to recognize ...

'Strange Rebels,' by Christian Caryl. And as Caryl briefly mentions, the Moral Majority was formed in 1979. The following year saw the election of Thatcher's ally Ronald Reagan and — compared with what preceded them — the relatively free-market policies in Indira Gandhi's India.

'Strange Rebels,' by Christian Caryl - The New York Times

“Christian Caryl's Strange Rebels argues convincingly that the problems of the 21st century were all hatched in 1979, and looks particularly at the move away from secularism and the welfare state; it's a bold and illuminating take on our time, and its analysis of militancy seems particularly relevant as we look to Syria.” The New Republic
