Swordspoint Riverside 1 Ellen Kushner

Ellen Kushner's Swordspoint is a very light and easy to read fantasy novel. The book is set in an unnamed city, in a world rather different to ours. The main character, Richard, is a swordsman, who earns his living by killing nobles by contract. This is basically done as a way to get around blood being on a noble's hands.

The book in pristine. That's the best word I have for Kushner's writing. Not a word wasted, not a moment dull. Nothing at all of questionable believability. Swordspoint is so easy to sink into and forget your way back. That kind of power at one writer's fingertips is almost scary and Kushner really, really does not waste it.
